Presented By: Mike Giresi

Director of Clinical Development at Family First Adolescent

1 NBCC Credit Hour

Summary

Have you ever felt lost with how to support the educational needs of your students and/or clients? Join Mike Giresi, Director of Clinical Development at Family First Adolescent Services, as he gives an overview of common difficulties within the realm of education and learning for adolescents from a complex trauma-informed lens. Early trauma has a profound impact on how we experience and process information from our environment. Understanding the dynamics of complex trauma and their impact on the development of self-regulation, self-image and social engagement is crucial to supporting our youth."

Objectives

- Define the impact of complex trauma
- Explain the connection between complex trauma and poor outcomes in education
